A Pause to Power Up

As fireworks light the skies this Fourth of July, we're reflecting on the kind of independence we care most about—independence in practice. For the past year, Tabellion Times has been our way of sharing updates, insights, and the story behind the mission. And while we've loved connecting with you here, it's time for a brief pause.

Why? Because we're zeroing in on what matters most right now: building the best web-based legal workflow platform for solo practitioners, whether they're handling appointed cases or private ones.

Case management
for indigent clients

A Pause to Power Up

Expanding Freedom, Evolving Purpose

We're still deeply committed to supporting indigent defense—but in the coming months, we'll be:

- Focusing deeply on the Blazor web application to create a seamless, powerful experience that works beautifully across devices—desktop, tablet, or mobile browser. This unified approach lets us deliver enhancements faster and ensure that whether you're at your desk or on the go, Tabellion stays in sync with your practice.
- Enhancing support for private case management in solo and small firm practices.
- Expanding features around client intake and private billing workflows.
- Creating flexible tools that work just as well for retained clients as they do for appointed ones.

Our mission has always been to support attorneys doing the hard work—and now, we're tailoring that support to better fit the real-world mix of appointed and retained caseloads. So from all of us at Autumn Moon Softworks: Happy Fourth of July, and here's to new kinds of freedom—freedom from paper, from silos, and from clunky old tools.

We'll Write Again Soon

While Tabellion Times is taking a short hiatus, this isn't goodbye—it's just a break while we focus on building something even better.

Once the new web experience is polished, powerful, and ready to serve both private and appointed practice, you'll be the first to hear about it right here in your inbox. The newsletter will return with more stories, updates, and behind-the-scenes peeks at what's next for Tabellion. So stay tuned—we can't wait to share what's coming.
